

Wedlake Bell named Top Ten Best Employer

Leading London law firm Wedlake Bell LLP has been recognised as one of this year's ten Best Employers by Legal Week. The Legal Week Employer Report 2015 is a review of the best employers in the legal sector.

The report, published this month, is a culmination of a major research project looking at employee satisfaction findings and a HR director's survey carried out by Legal Week Intelligence. The Ten Best Employers were selected based on the results from fee-earners only and the report identifies the law firms which have the most satisfied fee-earners.

Over 4000 responses were received and respondents were canvassed on the most important factors affecting their working lives and how their expectations are met at their firms. They were asked questions ranging from the quality of work undertaken, treatment by partners, career opportunities and other companies they most admire.

Wedlake Bell scored particularly highly in "The quality of work handled by the firm" and "The way I am treated by the partners" with a score of 4.38 out of 5. Another highlight was the score of 4.33 out of 5 in "The level of client interaction I have".

Managing Partner, Martin Arnold, comments on the award:

"This is tremendous recognition of our positive firm-wide culture. We are proud of our ethos which contributes to all our employee's development, well-being and progression. Our clients benefit from a team who are engaged, enthused and who provide the highest quality legal advice and service."
